

Thirty Years of California Library Ballot Measures (1980 – 2009)

By: Richard B. Hall, Library Consultant, California State Library
April 2010

Introduction

Over the last thirty years, the California State Library has tracked library ballot measures on an on going, but intermittent basis. The effort began shortly after the passage of Proposition 13 and culminated in 2009 with a statewide survey of all library jurisdictions. As of 2010, when the survey results were first published, this effort appears to be the only data collection completed for all of the library-related ballot measures in California, or for that matter, in any state for such a lengthy time period.

The data was collected from a number of sources including various websites and publications (including the Cain study¹), and by contacting all California public library directors and, in some cases, local elections offices directly. The data collection effort included both special tax measures which were specifically for library purposes only, as well as “library-related” general tax measures if local officials provided data because they felt the failure or approval of a general tax measure had a direct bearing on the library in the jurisdiction where the ballot measure was held.

Based on this exhaustive effort, there is a high degree of confidence in the comprehensiveness and accuracy of the data provided. However, if during the use of the data, an inaccuracy or oversight is found, please contact Library Development Services at CSLLDS@library.ca.gov or 916 653-5217. The on going data collection for library ballot measures has become part of California’s annual State Library statistical data collection. This webpage and the data will be updated periodically based on additional ballot measures provided in the future.

In addition to the analysis of the data and various reports provided below, an Excel Master File of CA Library Ballot Measures may be downloaded for viewing and further data manipulation.

The California Ballot Measure Environment

Any discussion of ballot measures in California must start with the observation that there are various voter approval requirements for different types of ballot measures, i.e., supermajority versus simple majority. For general taxes approved by the electorate, a simple majority (50% plus 1) is all that is required to pass a measure, which is in line with most other states. However, for most special tax measures, a supermajority (typically two-thirds or 66.6666... %) is required to pass a measure. This rule has governed California's political landscape for many years and while not completely unique to California, it is a defining reality that may continue to be in place for many years to come.

Definition of Special versus General Tax:

There are two broad classifications of taxes in California that voters are asked to approve, i.e., general and special taxes:

General Tax: A general tax is a levy that applies jurisdiction-wide and can be used to fund any type of services including police, fire, parks, streets, libraries, etc. A general tax only requires a simple majority (50 % plus 1) approval rate to pass.

Special Tax: A special tax is a dedicated tax that may only be expended on a specific type of service, such as libraries. Typically in California, a special tax requires a supermajority (66 2/3s %) approval to pass.

Overview of Data Collected

For the thirty year period (1980 to 2009), 307 library ballot measures held in 95 different library jurisdictions were reported. This means there were approximately 10 library related ballot measures held on average each year, and that at least one ballot measure was held in over half of the library jurisdictions in California over the thirty year period.

The following data set was collected for each library ballot measure:

- Name of Library Jurisdiction
- Election Date Ballot Measure Placed Before Voters
- Name of Local Agency Authorizing Election (City, County, or Special District)
- Funding Purpose (Operations, Facilities or Facilities & Operations)
- Type of Tax (Parcel Tax, Utility Users Tax, Sales Tax, etc)
- Percent Approval Rate ("Yes" Vote Percent)
- Vote Requirement (Majority, Supermajority)
- Election Outcome (Pass/Fail)

Countrywide Ballot Measures:

Countywide measures that impacted more than one library jurisdiction are shown only under the library jurisdiction that is responsible for library service on a countywide basis, rather than all affected jurisdictions. For example, for a measure on the ballot for all of Fresno County, the measure is shown under the Fresno County Library, but not under the Coalinga-Huron Unified School District Library District which is in Fresno County and was also affected by the ballot measure. For a list of measures not shown in the study in order to avoid double-counting them, please look under Countywide Measures.

Name Changes for Library Jurisdictions:

Some library jurisdiction names have changed over the years, but for the sake of sorting consistency, the current name of the library jurisdiction is used throughout the various sorts of the data.

Measures Sorted by Library Jurisdiction

The first report (click on heading / link above) provides a view of the data that can be used to quickly find individual ballot measures by library jurisdiction. The data is sorted first by library jurisdiction and then by the election date.

Table #1 below reveals that a fairly small number of library jurisdictions are responsible for most of the ballot measures held over the last thirty years, i.e., almost fifty percent of the library ballot measures reported were held in seventeen library jurisdictions.

Measures Sorted by Local Agency Authorizing Election

If a local jurisdiction has held a library ballot measure in the last thirty years, this report reveals that information quickly by listing the measures alphabetically by the agency authorizing the election. Over 150 California local agencies have authorized library ballot measures in the last thirty years.

Measures Sorted by Election Outcome

This report shows that overall, 53.7% of all the ballot measures were approved by the electorate. This is amazingly close to the findings of the Cain study, which covered the first half of the present study's timeframe (1980 – 1995) and reported an approval rate of 53.5%.² Both figures are significantly below the national approval rate of close to 80% for library ballot measures, primarily because most of the California measures require a two-thirds supermajority to pass.

Measures Sorted by “Yes” Vote Percentage

This report shows the ballot measures sorted by the percentage of “Yes” votes received by each measure, starting with ballot measures with the highest approval rates. At opposite ends of the spectrum, it should be noted that three ballot measures received over 90% of the “Yes” vote, while two measures received less than 30% of the “Yes” vote. Overall, three-quarters of the ballot measures fell between 50% and 80% of the “Yes” vote, with almost a third of the measures posting “Yes” votes between 60% and 70%.

The overall average of “Yes” votes for all ballot measures was 62.1%, which again matches very closely with data reported in the Cain study (60.8%).³ While this figure is well above the simple majority requirement of 50% plus 1, it is worth noting that it is 4 ½ % below the two-thirds requirement to pass supermajority special taxes in California. Over 40 ballot measures fell between the average “Yes” vote of 62.1% and the supermajority requirement of 66.666...%.

Measures Sorted by Election Date

Subsequent to the passage of Proposition 13, there was a gradual increase in the number of library ballot measures offered to the electorate through the 1980s, culminating with a total of 35 measures in that decade. That number almost quadrupled in the 1990s to a total of 136 measures in the second decade of data collection. The number remained stable through the next decade, with another 136 measures being offered to the electorate in the 2000s.

Table #2 below shows that both the average “Yes” vote percentage and the average approval rate for the ballot measures has improved somewhat with each subsequent decade over the last 30 years. In the 1980s, library supporters garnered just over a 51% approval rate with an average of just over 60% “Yes” votes. Those figures improved in the 1990s to an approval rate of over 52% with an average “Yes” vote of almost 62%, and then improved again in the 2000s to an approval rate of almost 56% and an average “Yes” vote of almost 63%.

Table #2

DECADE	Number of Measures	Average "Yes" Vote	Average Approval Rate
1980s	35	60.3%	51.4%
1990s	136	61.8%	52.2%
2000s	136	62.8%	55.9%
ALL	307	62.1%	53.7%

Measures Sorted by Funding Purpose

There are three possible types of funding purposes for each library ballot measure: facilities only, operations only, or facilities and operations combined. Over fifty percent of the ballot measures held were to raise funds for library operations only. Approximately another 25% of the measures were to raise funds for both library facilities and operations together, which means that approximately three-quarters of all of the measures raised some funds for library operations. The final 22% of the measures were held to raise funds for new or improved library facilities only.

Table #3 below shows a summary of voting results broken down by funding purpose:

Table #3

Funding Purpose	Number of Measures	Average "Yes" Vote	Average Approval Rate
Facilities	68	66.7%	66.2%
Operations	159	62.1%	56.6%
Facilities & Operations	78	58.2%	38.5%
All (Combined)	307*	62.1%	53.7%

* The funding purpose for two measures was unknown

Average "Yes" Vote:

For all library ballot measures combined, the average percentage of "Yes" votes was just over 62%, which is comparable to the national average of "Yes" votes for library ballot measures. Of all of the ballot measures for library facilities only, the average "Yes" vote was approximately 66.7% which, interestingly enough was just above the required two-thirds supermajority. For all of the measures for library operations only, the average "Yes" vote dropped to approximately 62%. When facilities and operations were combined in one ballot measure, the percentage of "Yes" votes dropped again to just over 58%.

Average Approval Rate:

Ballot measures to fund new or improved library facilities passed approximately 66% of the time. For ballot measures held to fund library operations, the approval rate was over 56%, but for ballot measures combining funding for both library facilities and operations simultaneously, the approval rate was only 38%.

These results suggest a propensity on the part of the electorate to approve ballot measures with a single purpose over those that seek funding for multiple purposes. Further, the data appears to confirm the idea that voters are more inclined to vote for something more “concrete” and specific like a new building rather than funds for something somewhat more nebulous such as “operations” or “services.”

Measures Sorted by Vote Requirement

Of all 307 library-related measures reported, 72% (221) required a supermajority to pass and 28% (86) required only a simple majority to be approved. Approximately 45% of the supermajority measures passed and the average “Yes” vote for all supermajority measures was 63%. Table #4 shows that while library-related ballot measures requiring only a simple majority to be approved received on average only 59% of the “Yes” votes, they passed almost 77% of the time due to the lower simple majority approval threshold. While the supermajority measures received approximately 4% more “Yes” votes on average than simple majority measures, they needed almost 17% more “Yes” votes in order to pass, which is why in general the average approval rate was almost 32% lower overall for supermajority measures. Once again, these results are very similar to what was reported in the Cain study.⁴

Table #4

Vote Requirement	Number of Measures	Percent of Measures	Average “Yes” Vote	Average Approval Rate
Supermajority	221	72%	63.1%	44.8%
Majority	86	28%	59.4%	76.7%
All (Combined)	307	100%	62.1%	53.7%

Supermajority Compared to Simple Majority Measures:

While the current analysis is based primarily on all ballot measures, i.e. both supermajority and simple majority measures combined, it is worthwhile to briefly look a little deeper into the data for supermajority and simple majority measures separately. This is important because it appears that most future ballot measures for library purposes will likely be measures requiring a supermajority for approval.

For those 99 out of 221 supermajority measures that passed, the average “Yes” vote was a whopping 74%, compared to the average “Yes” vote for the 122 supermajority measures that failed, which was only 54%. Similarly, the average “Yes” vote for the 66 out of 86 simple majority measures that passed was 65%, compared to the average “Yes” vote for the 20 simple majority measures that failed of only 41% (See Table #5).

Table #5

Election Outcome	Supermajority Measures Average “Yes” Vote	Simple Majority Measures Average “Yes” Vote
Passed	74%	65%
Failed	54%	41%
All (Passed & Failed)	63%	59%

It appears on average that when the electorate dislikes a measure, they really dislike it, and when they like it, they really like it, regardless of whether it is a supermajority or simple majority measure. The major difference in the outcome of these measures appears to be the threshold of required voter approval, which is significantly higher for supermajority measures.

Measures Sorted by Type of Tax

As shown in Table #6, the most commonly used type of taxation for library-related ballot measures in California is the parcel tax, which accounts for almost 30% of all measures held in the last 30 years. Sales taxes come in second place at 16% and measures that would result in the issuance of a general obligation bond account for 15% of the measures held. Special taxes follow closely with 14% of all measures, and utility users taxes came in at 8% of the measures, with the remaining types of taxes accounting for 17% of the measures.

Table #6

Type of Taxation	Percent of All Measures
Parcel Tax	30%
Sales Tax	16%
General Obligation Bond	15%
Special Tax	14%
Utility Users Tax	8%
All Others	17%
	100%

Please note that it is possible some of the measures identified as special taxes in the study are also parcel taxes. While most all parcel tax measures are special taxes, not all special tax measures are parcel taxes. Some respondents may have known their measure was a special tax, but weren't clear if it was a parcel tax or some other kind of special tax.

Average Approval Rate & “Yes” Vote by Type of Taxation:

Table #7 shows that even though they only received 52% of the “Yes” vote on average, utility users tax measures received the highest approval rate of 68% mainly because they require only a simple majority to pass. The special tax measures for general obligation bond issues passed 66% of the time and received a whopping 68% of the “Yes” vote on average.

The average approval rate dropped off significantly for parcel taxes which passed only 46% of the time with an average “Yes” vote of just under 65%. Sales tax measures came next with an average approval rate of 43% and an average “Yes” vote of 58%. Special tax measures had an average approval rate of only 34% and an average “Yes” vote of almost 59%.

Table #7

Type of Taxation	Number of Measures	Average “Yes” Vote	Average Approval Rate
Utility Users Tax	25	51.9%	68%
General Obligation Bond	47	68.0%	66%
Parcel Tax	91	64.5%	46%
Sales Tax	49	58.4%	43%
Special Tax	44	58.8%	34%
ALL MEASURES		62.1%	53.7%

Table #8 shows the average approval rates and “Yes” votes for five additional types of taxes. This data was not shown in Table #6 principally because the sample size was too small to be of significance.

Table #8

Glossary of Types of Taxes:

The following is a list of the various types of taxes (both general and special) along with basic definitions:

Parcel Tax: A parcel tax is generally one form of special tax that is applied uniformly on a per-parcel basis and not on an ad-valorem basis (in proportion to property value) like property taxes. It is established at a flat rate for each parcel type, e.g. residential or commercial, regardless of size or value of the property, or it may be levied according to some other formula such as acreage of the lot or number of bedrooms.

Special Tax: Generically, a special tax is levied for a specific purpose such as providing library services only. Special taxes “may be applied on a uniform basis to real property or on the basis of benefit, cost of providing services or other reasonable basis (Government code section 53717.3).”⁵ The use of the income from special taxes is limited to the specific program for which the tax is levied, and the proceeds must be placed in a separate account from the general fund.

Sales Tax: Also known as a transaction and use tax, a sales tax is generally applied to the sale of goods and services usually as a percent of the cost of the transaction. The percentage is often described in terms of cents, i.e., a ½ cent sales tax (on every dollar expended).

General Obligation Bond: A general obligation (G.O.) bond is a debt financing instrument which is used to fund large capital facilities projects. In California, G.O. bonds must be approved by a ballot measure and are for a specific purpose such as to construct a new public library building. The issuance of G.O. bonds are backed by the “full faith and credit” of the funding agency.

Utility Users Tax: A utility users tax is an excise tax levied on utility customers. In California, “Cities are empowered to levy taxes upon the use of utilities (such as electricity, gas, telephone, and cable television)”⁶

Business License Tax: A business license tax is a tax paid each year by a commercial concern for the privilege of doing business within a city or county.

Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT): Also known as a hotel tax, this tax is an excise tax which may be charged for the use of a hotel or motel room within a jurisdiction.

Benefit Assessment: A benefit assessment “is a charge imposed on particular real property for a local public improvement of direct benefit to that property.”⁷ Benefit assessments are a method of linking landowners who directly benefit from public improvements with the costs of those improvements rather than placing the burden of infrastructure costs on all of the residents of the jurisdiction. Benefit assessments used to only require a simple majority to be approved in California, but since the passage of Proposition 218 in the mid-1990s, benefit assessments now require a two-thirds supermajority to be approved.

Excise Tax: An excise tax is “a tax imposed upon a particular use of property or the exercise of a single power over property incidental to ownership.” (Bromley v. McCaughan, 280 U.S., 124 [1929]).⁸

Ballot Measures not Authorizing Taxation:

Most of the 307 ballot measures were for tax measures that would have resulted in the generation of revenue if successful. However, there are a few measures that decided other issues and didn't necessarily involve new taxation or assessments like the location of a library building, charter amendments, Gann Appropriations Limit Overrides, advisory issues, etc.

Conclusion & Next Steps

In conclusion, it is obvious from the survey results that for the last thirty years, the outcome of California library ballot measures has been similar to the rest of the nation with one very prominent exception: the supermajority voter requirement for special taxes. Those library-related measures in California which only required a simple majority were approved 77% of the time, which is very close to the overall national average of 80%. However, library measures which required a supermajority were approved only 45% of the time.

This finding, as well as many others in the survey, is consistent with the results of the Cain study performed 15 years ago for California library ballot measures from 1980 to 1995. Because of the depth of data collection (more data was collected in the Cain study than in the current survey), as well as the more in-depth analysis, the Cain study still remains the most detailed and important study of California library ballot measures to date and should be read widely and studied thoroughly by those facing a library ballot measure campaign.

The Cain study is available as a download or by requesting a hard copy at CSLLDS@library.ca.gov or (916) 653-5217. A related work by the present author which summarized and compared the results of the Cain study to national data collection trends in 1996 is also available at <http://www.library.ca.gov/lds/referenda/index.html>.⁹

Possible Future Additional Data Collection & Analysis:

As previously mentioned, the State Library will continue to collect data each year for any new library-related ballot measures. If there is sufficient interest, the State Library may also collect additional in-depth data for many of the ballot measures in the current study. Readers are encouraged to request specific additional information about the ballot measures in this report that they would find important to planning a ballot measure. To do so, please contact Library Development Services at CSLLDS@library.ca.gov or 916 653-5217. If enough interest is generated for specific topics, additional data collection will be undertaken, assuming the resources to do so are available.

Further, if readers are interested in additional analyses of the current survey's data that have not been presented above, the State Library is also willing to look at providing an update to this study, if there is enough interest. For example, it may be possible to investigate further the difference in the results between supermajority and majority measures as well as any difference in special versus general elections.

Finally, the State Library is also looking at transferring the current survey data from an Excel spreadsheet to a database which would allow users to search and manipulate the database on-line and allow the data to be more easily updated. If accomplished, this effort would assist local library ballot measure planners in the future.
