

National Library Week is April 9-15, 2017
Celebrate with the California State Library

Sacramento, Calif. – The California State Library is celebrating National Library Week with a number of great activities. Here's what we'll be doing.

- April 10-14 - Special exhibits on how libraries transform will be on display in both the Stanley Mosk Library and Courts Building at 914 Capitol Mall, Gillis Hall, and the Library Annex Building at 900 N Street, in the California History Room.
- April 12 - Visit our table on the West Lawn of the State Capitol as we showcase all the great things the State Library and all libraries do. We'll be there from 11 a.m. – 2 p.m.
- April 13 - Join us for the Collective Goods Book Fair in our Annex Building lobby at 900 N Street, 10:30 a.m. – 3:30 p.m.

Today's libraries are more than just books. Libraries transform lives and communities. They are more than quiet places to study and check out books. They are Internet access for low-income families and job training and resumé writing workshops for the unemployed. Libraries are modern community centers that provide for the needs of every member of the community. They are places where lives are transformed every day.

Come celebrate with us.

For more information contact: Deborah.Lynch@library.ca.gov or 916-651-6452.

About the State Library: Founded in 1850, the California State Library is the central reference and research library for the Governor's office, legislature, state employees, and the general public. The State Library administers federal and state grants for programs in historical preservation, library construction, civil liberties education, literacy, volunteering, and broadband connectivity in public libraries. For more information, visit www.library.ca.gov.

####